ENERGEN

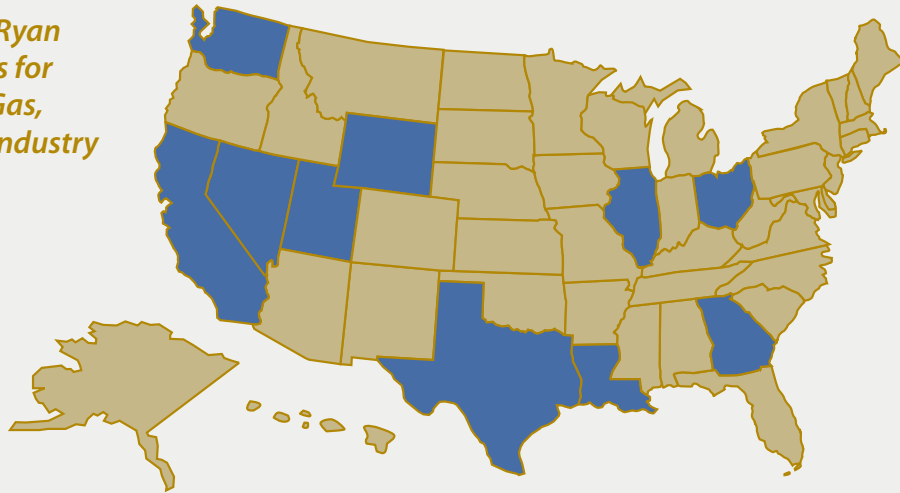

Ryan produces substantial tax savings even after our competitors have completed their work.

We go beyond the expected and look for the exceptions that benefit our clients. By reviewing the exact time periods and types of tax as our competitors, we have produced substantial additional savings for several large oil and gas, mining, and refining companies. We're at our best when following other, less focused, firms. And, our competition doesn't bother to follow us. We know of no instance where any of our competitors have produced meaningful tax savings after our review was complete.
